Dear Parent/Carer

As a Trust of schools, we regularly reflect on the national context for our young people growing up in today's world linked to personal, social, emotional and health issues (PSHE). We want to highlight issues that are happening nationally as well as locally. The week of the 27th April is being dedicated to the theme around consent which is a national topic of concern. We are calling the week "It's not ok".

We have used the NSPCC resources, a nationally recognised charity who supports professionals and families. The week will look at a number of issues and reinforces the importance of building and maintaining positive relationships and recognising and responding to behaviour relating to:

- harmful sexual behaviour
- child sexual abuse
- child sexual exploitation.
- misogyny and misandry

Students from years 7 – 10 will have their form tutor time dedicated to the themes and each day there is a different topic which is age appropriate to the year group. There will be opportunities for students to learn through videos, discussions and questions during the week within their form time.

The students are going to be encouraged to have conversations about these topics throughout the week and so they may bring these conversations home to discuss them with friends and family. Below are some helpful websites that may provide some support for these conversations.

If you have any questions regarding our It's not ok week, please contact the school.

Yours faithfully
